The summer months at National Museum were filled with activity, learning and engagement. The month May began with the Children's workshops, Playtime at National Museum 2015, coupled with a special interactive and experiential exhibition titled ELEMENTS which was extremely popular with them.

The museum had a busy schedule with a packed schedule of Special Exhibitions. The Exhibition season began with the ‘Art of Calligraphy and Beyond’ which comprised of priceless decorative art objects that were drawn from the reserve collection of National Museum. Some of these objects had never been exhibited before. Senior Curator, Dr. Anamika Pathak worked closely with Zahid Ali Ansari, Assistant Curator to curate this Exhibition. This collaboration between an experienced and a young colleague has been symbolic of transfer of knowledge and responsibility which is a very good sign for the Museum. The Exhibition was designed in-house by a young artist and designer, Ms. Priya and was much appreciated.

Other Exhibitions organized at the Museum included the one object exhibition from Indira Gandhi Rashtriya Manav Sangrahalya, Bhopal titled ‘Poubi Lai- the Story of the Giant Python’ and ‘Cosmology to Cartography – A cultural journey of Indian Maps’, both of which were extremely popular. Each Exhibition was coupled with interesting educational programmes and activities. The Museum lent its popular exhibition ‘Ramakatha in Indian Miniatures’ to the National Gallery of Australia, Canberra in May 2015 which is also being sent to the Art Gallery, Auckland, New Zealand.

21 June 2015 was celebrated as International Day of Yoga and on this occasion the Museum lent objects from its collection for an exhibition organized at Lalit Kala Akademi titled ‘Yoga in Indian Art’ which was a great success. Other programmes were also organized on the day including a session on Yoga with NM staff members and walks in the gallery for children on Yoga in Indian Art. A special T-shirt featuring the Yogic figure on a seal from Indus Civilization was also launched on this day. A special lecture was organised on this occasion and also a film ‘History of Yoga- The Path of My Ancestors’ was screened in the auditorium.

National Museum brought out many interesting publications in the span of 4 months including the catalogues for ‘Cosmology and Cartography’, ‘Raghogarh Paintings’ and a Hindi translation of ‘Man in Paleolithic Age’.

A number of Curator walks, workshops and lectures were held at the Museum which were well received by the audience and visitors. Our social media presence has also shot up in these months with all the events being updated online and talked about by a number of followers and fans. With the activities and programme the museum wishes to engage with our regular audience in a better way and attract more audience.

An exhibition titled Art of Calligraphy and Beyond: Arabic-Persian Inscriptions on Decorative Arts objects was on display from 15th May till 12th July 2015 in Special Exhibition Hall-I.

Many of the objects in this exhibition were part of the reserve collection of the museum and were put on display for the public for the very first time. This initiative is a popular way to rotate the collection in the museum that allows the visitors to appreciate objects which they might not be able to see otherwise.

The exhibition had 56 utilitarian artefacts all bearing inscriptions artistically blended with various motifs and these objects were of different material such as metal, wood, textiles and semi precious stones. Different forms of surface ornamentations, decorated by various crafting techniques such as koftagiri, bidri, niello, engraving, writing, printing and embroidering was highlight in these exhibits.

A number of activities including Curator's Walk by Dr. Naseem Akhtar, curator walks by the curators, Dr. Anamika Pathak and Zahid Ali Ansari and workshops were organised around the exhibition.

Poubi Lai - The Story of a Giant Python

National Museum collaborated with IGRMS, Bhopal to organize a one object exhibitio titled Poubi Lai – The Story of a Giant Python. The exhibition was curated by IGRMS and showcased a 22 feet long sculpture of Poubi Lai in wood accompanied by 30 paintings depicting mythical stories around this ritual object from Manipur. The exhibition opened on Tuesday, 21st July 2015.

The story of Poubi Lai is an important lore of the Meitei people of Manipur and this mighty creature is believed to have lived in the core of Loktak Lake. The lore expresses spiritual prowess of this mythical being whose anger grieved the Moirang kingdom beyond their control. The lore is preserved generation after generations through oral tradition.

It was for the first time in 2003 that one of the successors of the royal guild crafted a life size crawling posture of Poubi Lai on wood and his creation had drawn attention of the people to revisit to the glorious world of a great Python lore of Manipur. The exhibition was well received at National Museum and has then travelled to Indian Museum, Kolkata.

Rama-Katha in Indian Miniatures

‘The Story of Rama in Indian Miniatures’ from National Museum, New Delhi made their journey to the National Gallery of Australia, Canberra, Australia from 22nd May till 23rd August 2015. It was on display at Orde Poynton Gallery, depicting Ramayana, which is one of the world’s great epics. Ramayana is ubiquitous in Indian life and culture as popular entertainment and moral guidance. This exhibition of 101 paintings, each illustrating a key moment from the narrative marked an important collaboration between these two premier national institutions. Created between the 17th and 19th centuries from across India, the paintings not only present the fantastic story of the Ramayana but also the diversity of regional painting styles that developed over time.

A catalogue was also produced for the exhibition.

Yoga Exhibition

Sangeet Natak Akademi organized an exhibition in the Lalit Kala Academy galleries titled Yoga Chakra: Tradition and Modernity from June 21 to June 27, 2015.

National Museum lent 41 objects from its collection for this exhibition. It was organized as part of the first International Day of Yoga, celebrated on 21 June 2015.

The exhibition was curated by Smt. Shushma K. Bahl, and Ms. Archana B. Sapra, art critics and authors.

The exhibition featured about 350 masterpieces of art on Yoga in varied mediums. Some works represented the classical creative agencies of India going back to over 5000 years, and some were contemporary creations made specifically for the project by emerging young artists.
Exhibitions

Elements

A large section of NM's visitor group comprises students and NM regularly conducts programmes for all, facilitating productive learning and complete museum experience. National Museum periodically conceptualizes and organizes temporary exhibitions around various themes which caters to all public.

The exhibition, Elements was developed for children of ages 6-12. The segments in the exhibition were therefore very age specific. Through ELEMENTS children returned to a world of wonder, in all of its senses. Here, children were left to their own as parents and adults weren't allowed to accompany.

The exhibition Elements was an experiential, interactive art & theatre exhibition for children which engaged them by stimulating their senses. In today’s technology dominated world sensorial experiences are a rare luxury for children - their tactile world is limited, their lives are structured, and spent mostly in enclosed spaces. They are always being told or instructed what to do, even when they play games on electronic gadgets. On the contrary, the exhibition elements used no text panels or labels to direct children as visitors to experience the space or objects in an intended approach. It rather acted a as a medium to provide young museum audiences a pleasurable simulative learning environment.

The exhibition was part of Playtime at National Museum 2015, an annual summer programme for children between 7 to 17 years. The exhibition was experienced by children from 10 July 2015 to 5 May 2015.

THE REVIVAL OF BENARAS AND ITS WEAVES
International Conference for Inclusive Museums

National Museum hosted the International Conference for Inclusive Museums organised by National Council of Science Museums. The conference delegates included leaders in the field as well as emerging artists and scholars, who represent a broad range of disciplines and perspectives. A variety of presentation options and session types offered delegates multiple opportunities to engage, to discuss key issues in the field, and to build relationships with scholars from other cultures and disciplines.

Activity on Social Media

National Museum has active Facebook and Twitter profiles. Invites and photographs of varied events that the Museum hosts are shared regularly. Besides invites, exclusive posts are curated and posted regularly on both mediums. These mostly share the collection of the museum, exhibition details, online exhibits, and news articles covering the museum. Exclusive hashtags, pertaining to various collections and exhibitions have been created and are used regularly to increase awareness about National Museum collections and activities. Through these accounts a healthy interaction is maintained with the followers, and often queries are addressed. This quarter on Facebook, 910 people have liked the National Museum page, and 17,494 impressions were made. On an average there were 28 visits per day to the page. On Twitter 547 people followed the official account and 2,59,200 impressions were made. On average there was 1.8 % engagements and 778 Retweets over the period.

Virtual Exhibitions

Around 13 virtual exhibitions are available online showing highlights of various galleries of National Museum. The themes are myriad and the objects are not specific to a single gallery or collection. Staring from the artefacts of Harappa, one can get a glimpse of tribal and folk lore objects, along with various tangible and intangible heritage elements. The story of Ramayana, the craftsmanship of decorative arts in Ivory or wood, the splendors of Indian jewellery, and the unique defense armors etc. are online available for website viewers. Also an initiative of Google art, a virtual exhibition on Pottery from Ancient Peru is on website. The launch of Google Art project has added many dimensions to the show of collections of the Museum. It is reaching a larger population and has created a niche in the virtual world.

New Batch of Yuva Saathi

New Batch of Yuva Saathi was also selected for training in the month of August. This will be the 6th Batch of Yuva saathi program. The programme aims at engaging young minds in a dialogue with the exhibits of National Museum.
New Initiatives

New Merchandise

The Museum has introduced a range of new products at its shop featuring collections from the Museum on the ground floor including replicas, T-shirts, notebooks, magnets and pocket mirrors. The new merchandise is attracting a lot of attention and are excellent memorabilia and gifting items for visitors.

New Initiatives

Upcoming

National Museum is soon to launch an Audio visual Bilingual film that will be a peek into the collections of the museum, and will be available to everyone. The entry ticket charge of museum has been revised and photography charges are also standardized for a more organized approach towards requests of publication of museum collection.

PWD Project

National Museum continuously works towards improving its facilities offered to its wide visitor base – children, tourists and cultural enthusiasts. The overall objective is to make the Museum inclusive for all.

A percentage of the Museum's visitor base comprises of people with disabilities. In the past one year the Museum has succeeded in increasing its visibility among this section of society by collaborating with organizations working for people with disabilities and developing programmes which are specially designed for visually impaired visitors and for other audiences with disabilities.

Programmes like storytelling sessions for visually impaired audiences, tactile exhibition displays, one day workshops/seminars, and touch tour of select museum objects for museum walk-ins are few tailor-made programmes which were developed and implemented in 2014.

National Museum is now planning to open a new gallery with enhanced access for people with disabilities and provide differently-abled visitors an equally enriching experience as other members of audiences. This will be further enriched by training and sensitization for staff and volunteers. This project has been conceptualized with key partners, namely UNESCO, SAKSHAM, Open Knowledge Community (OKC) and National Platform for the Rights of Disabled (NPRD). The gallery is scheduled to open for public on 18th December 2015.
