ARCHAEOLOGICAL TREASURES OF THE CYPRUS MUSEUM

15 Nov-20 Dec 2016

an exhibition created by the Department of Antiquities, Cyprus in collaboration with The Press and Information Office of the Republic of Cyprus

About the Exhibition

National Museum, New Delhi in collaboration with the Cyprus High Commission, New Delhi and Press and Information Office, Republic of Cyprus is holding a collaborative exhibition titled Archaeological Treasures of Cyprus Museum which comprises of 29 panels showing archaeological objects from excavations, throughout the years in Cyprus. The panels will be educational, bearing images and explanations of intriguing objects of the past. There will also be some objects on display from the collection of the Cyprus High Commission and National Museum.

The exhibition will be held from 15th November, 2016 till 20th December, 2016.

The Cyprus Museum houses archaeological treasures representing all the chronological periods and cultures that developed on the island over the centuries. Unlike other big Museums of the world, there is continuous renewal of the Cyprus Museum’s collections with works of art and other objects from the ongoing excavation activities of the Department on Antiquities as well as the activities of many foreign archaeological missions, offering, through unique objects, a panorama of the ancient past. The ongoing archaeological and historical research along with the protection and promotion of the evidence of past cultures emphasize the value and importance that the state attaches to the preservation of the cultural heritage.